Berry Veal uses free range dairy calves. In order for the dairy to produce milk the cow needs to give birth every year. Once the calf is born it drinks the colostrum which is something that can't be used for human consumption. Once the milk starts to flow the cow is put back into the dairy herd for milking. Since they don't need many male calves to inseminate the herd we use those calves in our process. These free range calves are never penned in and are allowed to roam free. Their diet is only fresh mothers milk. We use no artificial ingredients or other fillers. It is a completely natural diet.

Veal from Holland is recognized as the finest quality veal in the world. Berry Veal is partnering with the Van Drie Group from Holland. This group is the largest producer of Dutch Veal and is a vertically integrated company. They breed, raise, house, harvest and pack the finest veal available. All products produced for the CDV Brand are 100% traceable and verifiable from birth to box.

All calves are raised in a controlled farm environment and are housed in groups (Group Raised). The barns are spacious, well-lit and ventilated with plenty of access to water, feed and interaction. This controlled quality veal is under the "Safety Guard" system and the E.U. accredited calf Quality Guarantee Foundation (SKV). Safety Guard also includes the Animal Welfare Code based upon respecting the freedoms of the animals. The calves that we use are fed a special balanced diet of whole milk replacement, calf milk powder, both of which are fortified with vitamins, minerals and protein along with muesli for optimal digestibility and the promotion of natural behavior. Dutch Veal, like other veal, has different quality levels. Berry Veal has secured the highest quality in the evaluation process with respect to color, conformation and lean to fat ratios. We are very proud to offer this unique and high quality category of veal product to you and your customers.
